Calling all Small Businesses

The official start of November sets off the alarms for holiday season preparation. The ads for Black Friday will begin on the radio and television soon & frequently. The sales for side dishes to accompany the turkey will draw customers to the grocery store in droves. Thanksgiving is an exciting time to see family and friends- of course we want to feed them well and buy them gifts.

Better yet, we can do that while also supporting the local economy, which means supporting one another here at the Petal Project. Perhaps you've heard of it before, but November 26, 2016 is Small Business Saturday, a holiday started in 2011 by American Express in response to the market domination of chain retailers on Black Friday. If you own a local business and don't yet participate in Small Business Saturday, you may want to take a look at this webpage for FREE customizable marketing materials for your social networks, website, and store front. It's so easy to get involved! Helpful articles and tips for small business owners could help you draw folks out the Saturday after Thanksgiving. And if you don't own a business, make sure to #ShopSmall and support all of the unique enterprises that make Dubuque special!

5. Plug up the space between the bottom of doors and the floor to prevent drafts & keep heat in
